

End of Conference

Some concluding remarks

State of the art 1

- ◆ Differences between
 - ◆ national organisational models & policies
 - ◆ general conditions
 - ◆ methods and traditions in institutions are so obvious that no single model for MLA cooperation is at hand

State of the art 2

- ◆ Many good projects and good local experiences in cross-sectorial activities
- ◆ Good - but few- examples of national policies
- ◆ Common accept of user-orientation and recognition of enduser-needs - users don't care who deliver the answer...

State on the art 3

- ◆ Future cooperation on development will be based on a continued dialogue on strategies, guidelines and standards, new concepts
- ◆ cross-sectorial and cross country projects still valid working method

Common basic vision for knowledge institutions

- ◆ To exploit new technologies to integrate access to all published knowledge and collections in MLA-institutions in everyday-life in a user friendly way

Common strategic challenge 1

- ◆ To present convincing strategies for knowledge institutions as keyplayers in developing knowledge economies and societies
- ◆ 'cultural memory raw-material for the future'
- ◆ much more visible knowledge institutions

Common strategic challenge

- ◆ To create real hybrid, connected institutions
- ◆ To expand and redefine the role of knowledge institutions in relation to
 - ◆ research, education, learning
 - ◆ social inclusion
 - ◆ cultural activity, creativity, inspiration

Problem to adress for national bodies: support to local action

- ◆ Provide frames for hybrid institutions
(Minerva guidelines for good websites)
- ◆ support providing digital content
- ◆ programmes for skills and competencebuilding
- ◆ funding for innovative projects on local level

Perspective

- ◆ National strategy for seamless e-access
- ◆ ultimately aiming at a coherent system of 'knowledge webs'

You may find help

- ◆ CALIMERA policy toolkit for cooperation strategies!
- ◆ See you tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the Workers Museum....or
- ◆ safe travel home
